

Supplementary material. Notes for the semi-structural interviews

1. Experiences and interest in the subject:
We have identified several topics, such as cultural landscape, urban landscape, buildings, ruins, and archeological heritage.
 - Which ones of these topics are you most familiar with and want to talk about?
 - Are there other relevant topics to discuss?
2. The current situation:
 - What kind of climate-related initiatives are relevant and, in your opinion, have the most threatening consequences for cultural heritage (both direct, indirect, and visual consequences)?
 - Describe the consequences of these initiatives on cultural heritage. In what way do they affect cultural heritage? What are the most serious threats against cultural heritage today, in your opinion?
 - Good and bad effects on cultural heritage?
 - Climate-related initiatives with equal focus on cultural heritage and nature?
 - Which sectors of the society carry out climate-related initiatives with severe impacts on cultural heritage?
 - Climate-related initiatives that, in a faulty way, treat cultural heritage like a non-essential issue.
 - Are there specific regions in your country with particular challenges? Differences between the regions?
 - Other topics?
3. The future situation
 - Do you have any good examples of climate-related initiatives that will secure cultural heritage in an altered climate-situation in the future?
 - Suggestions for improvements?
 - In what areas is there a lack of initiatives or systems that recognize consequences of climate-initiatives on cultural heritage?
 - If you could foretell the future condition – which are the worst threats?
 - What are the 2-3 most important topics related to future threats on cultural heritage?
4. Adjustments to climate-changes – plans and public administration
 - What kind of plans which include or should include cultural heritage are carried out on a national, regional, and local (municipal) basis? Would you please send a link or a pdf? Do Sweden, Denmark, and Iceland have policy-documents on a national level? Is there a need for further legislation?
 - Anything else relevant for the topic?
 - Anyone else that we should contact?
 - Any literature, articles, websites, or research project (national/international)?