

Table S1. The 10 questions about the basic demographic details of the respondents, patterns of post-endodontic restoration, materials, and methods, and factors affecting the choices of contemporary restoration alternatives.

QUESTIONS	ANSWERS
Q1: How long have you been practicing dentistry?	0-5 years
	6-10 years
	11-20 years
	>20 years
Q2: What is your specialty?	Endodontics
	Orthodontics
	Pediatric dentistry
	Oral and maxillofacial surgery
	Prosthodontics
	Restorative dentistry
	Oral and maxillofacial radiology
	Periodontology
	General dental practitioners without any special training
Q3: Which institution do you practice in?	The private clinic
	University hospital
	Oral and dental health center
	Other
Q4: Which geographic region do you practice in?	Dental practitioners were able to write which city they work in this section.
Q5: What is the most influential factor in choosing your post-endodontic restoration strategy?	Economic factors
	Aesthetic purposes
	Periodontal condition of the tooth
	The remaining tooth structure
	Tooth location
	Habits and expectations of the patient
	Other
Q6: Which coronal restoration type do you prefer mostly in post-endodontic restoration?	Amalgam
	Composite resin
	Glass ionomer
	Inlays/ Onlays/ Overlays
	Endocrown
	Metal-ceramic crowns
	Ceramic-composite resin veneers
	Combined restorations
	Other
Q7: How frequently do you use a post for post-endodontic restoration?	Always Occasionally
	Rarely
Q8: What is the most influential factor in choosing your post option?	Economic factors
	Aesthetic purposes
	Function
	Ease of application
	Ferrule effect
	The width of the canal
	Ease of removal when a problem has occurred
	Other

Q9: Which type of post do you use most frequently for post- endodontic restoration?	Prefabricated metal posts Cast posts-and-cores Fiber posts Other
Q10: What is the most common problem you encounter in post-endodontic restorations?	Adhesive problems Coronal fractures Vertical root fractures Aesthetic problems