Why post with Preprints.org?

Preprints.org is a multidisciplinary preprint platform that makes scientific manuscripts from all fields of research immediately citable and permanently available. Authors can publish their articles free of charge. Content on Preprints.org is not peer-reviewed, can receive feedback from readers, and can be updated by authors at any time.

Multidisciplinary
Preprints from all research fields can be submitted.

Open access
Every preprint is posted with a Creative Commons CC BY 4.0 license, ensuring that authors retain copyright and receive credit, while allowing anyone to read and reuse the material.

Citation via Crossref DOI
A citable DOI and a permanent link is issued to each preprint, making it instantly citable.

Comment on any article
Obtain feedback via comments from peers to help to improve the paper.

Simple submission process and fast publication speed
Only requires basic information for submission. The median time from submission to publication is less than 48 hours.

High visibility
Preprints.org are indexed in Preprint Citation Index (Web of Science), Google Scholar, Europe PMC, and Scilit.

Screen

All preprints undergo a short screening before being placed online. This process takes less than 24 hours in most cases.

Post online

Post your preprint for free after passing the screening process in open access format under a Creative Commons CC BY 4.0 license.

Read, Cite, Reuse, Comment, and Discuss

Unlimited and free access for readers; a DOI to follow your citation; retain copyright of your work and free use of your article; obtain public or private feedback from readers at any time.

Update and Repost

When you upload a new version of your preprint, a new DOI will be issued for each version.
