Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

There are several aromatic medicinal plants that grow in forest ecosystems. They have been applied traditionally in several medicinal preparations. In total, 50% of the commercial essential oils are sourced in forest or wild-crafted. The research and publications on these can lead to discovery of new medicines.

This Special Issue welcomes both research and review papers on the most recent and innovative developments of forest-based natural products. We hope that this Special Issue can further encourage and promote the scientific contributions of researchers in this field.
