Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

Genealogy invites submissions for the "Community Engaged Indigenous Research Across the Globe" Special Issue. Despite most Indigenous communities experiencing colonization resulting in land and food trauma, depletion of cultural resources, and health/wellbeing; Indigenous communities have still retained and, or are actively reclaiming their ancestral cultural identities and practices to reestablish balance and health.

Some topics may include the following:

- How do Indigenous communities and researchers operationalize engagement in culturally appropriate and ethical manners?
- Methods in which Indigenous communities engage within their environment and on the land to conduct research?
- Descriptions of innovative approaches to partnerships, research design, or interventions that increase cultural continuity and wellbeing;
- Use of community engaged/cbpr research to increase cultural continuity and health;
- Decolonizing approaches to community-engaged or community-based participatory research;
- Long-term impacts to communities who engage and participate in research.

Message from the Editorial Board

Genealogy is a scholarly journal that provides a venue for academic, cutting-edge contributions to the interdisciplinary field of genealogy studies. We welcome contributions that examine genealogies of family lineage, use genealogical considerations and methods in examining other historical processes (including migration histories, personal, social, and national identities, and social institutions) or study the construction of genealogical narratives. The journal is also interested in biographical studies and their contribution to the understanding of broader social and historical phenomena.

Author Benefits

Open Access: free for readers, with article processing charges (APC) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility: indexed within Scopus, ESCI (Web of Science), and many other databases.

Rapid Publication: manuscripts are peer-reviewed and a first decision is provided to authors approximately 24.9 days after submission; acceptance to publication is undertaken in 4.9 days (median values for papers published in this journal in the second half of 2023).
