Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

The molecular and technological aspects of the field of radiation therapy have grown rapidly. Several factors, including the patient, radiation biological, and radiation physics components, can influence the outcomes of radiotherapy for cancer. Recent advances in novel pharmaceuticals, molecular technologies, and outcome prediction models have increased the significance of molecular research in cancer. This special issue emphasizes the most recent findings of molecular research in radiotherapy for cancer, with a focus on radiotherapy-related molecular alterations, biomarkers, and mechanisms. We invite submissions of research articles and reviews addressing contemporary molecular research in cancer radiotherapy.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS, ISSN 1422-0067) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, molecular biophysics, molecular medicine, and all aspects of molecular research in chemistry. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.

Author Benefits

Open Access: free for readers, with article processing charges (APC) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility: indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, PMC, MEDLINE, Embase, CAPlus / SciFinder, and other databases.

Journal Rank: JCR - Q1 (Biochemistry & Molecular Biology) / CiteScore - Q1 (Inorganic Chemistry)
