Drug discovery is a very complex and difficult process that involves finding and developing new therapeutic entities. In recent years, the methodology behind drug discovery has rapidly evolved and comprises a plethora of paradigms and techniques, but there remains no perfect algorithm for guaranteed success. Despite considerable research, fortunate discoveries and the incredible intuition, inspiration, and creativity of researchers still play a vitally important role in the field of drug discovery, which remains popular among many scientists. Novel approaches and innovations are needed to address the dominant challenge of cost efficiency.

This Special Issue aims to provide a wide and diverse platform for researchers to present their recent efforts to improve current methodologies in order to find new molecular entities. This Special Issue focuses on presenting innovative research as well as reviews of current practices involving all aspects of drug discovery and drug development.

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS, ISSN 1422-0067) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, molecular biophysics, molecular medicine, and all aspects of molecular research in chemistry. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.

Author Benefits

Open Access: free for readers, with article processing charges (APC) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility: indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, PMC, MEDLINE, Embase, CAPlus / SciFinder, and other databases.

Journal Rank: JCR - Q1 (Biochemistry & Molecular Biology) / CiteScore - Q1 (Inorganic Chemistry)
