Join us as we explore advancements made in the vast field of mitochondrial biology with regards to aging and diseases. This Special Issue serves as an update to a previous issue and calls for original research, mini and full reviews, and perspectives that address the progress and current standing of mitochondrial dysfunction in the following topics:

- aging
- dementias and neurodegenerative diseases
- treatments to counteract mitochondrial dysfunction
- protein homeostasis and mtDNA quality control
- chronic inflammation and inflammatory diseases
- cell/retrograde signaling
- oxidative stress
- metabolic disorders and diabetes
- pain
- cancer
- stroke
