Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

In 2022, we will be launching our first Special issue on “Clinical Frontiers in Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD)”. The goal is to provide both clinicians and researchers worldwide with cutting-edge research in ASD as well as clinical knowledge in assessing and caring for individuals with ASD across treatment settings. We welcome a wide range of manuscripts from expert clinicians and researchers on various topics, including but not limited to genetics, gender and equality, common medical and psychiatric co-occurring conditions, neuromodulation, management of severe behavior and mood dysregulation across various settings, employment and higher education, families and school, nonmedical intervention, substance use, and legal and government support. We welcome both solicited and unsolicited submissions that will contribute to this goal. We also welcome studies with negative studies, which is also one of the unique features of this journal.

Message from the Editorial Board

There has been an explosion of gene and target based research and therapeutics in the multitude of fields that compose clinical medicine. The Journal of Clinical Medicine's (JCM) staff and editorial board are dedicated to providing cutting edge, timely, and peer-reviewed articles covering the diverse subspecialties of clinical medicine. The journal publishes concise, innovative, and exciting research articles as well as clinically significant articles and reviews that are pertinent to the myriad of disciplines within medicine. The articles published are relevant to both primary care physicians and specialists. The journal's full-texts are archived in PubMed Central and indexed in PubMed. Please consider submitting your manuscripts for publication to our journal and check us out on-line!
