Message from the Guest Editors

The aim of this Special Issue is to provide a comprehensive platform for the dissemination of cutting-edge research, innovative strategies, and evidence-based practices in the field of cardiovascular prevention and therapy. Cardiovascular diseases (CVDs) remain a global health challenge, and this Special Issue seeks to bring together researchers, clinicians, and experts to address the multifaceted aspects of CVD prevention, with the ultimate goal of reducing the burden of CVDs worldwide.

The scope of this Special Issue encompasses a wide range of topics related to cardiovascular prevention, including: Risk assessment and prediction; Lifestyle interventions; Pharmacological interventions; Innovations in technology; Exercise physiology; Global perspectives; and Prevention programs and initiatives.

This Special Issue encourages contributions from diverse disciplines, including cardiology, epidemiology, genetics, and psychology. By fostering interdisciplinary collaboration and sharing the latest research and practices, we aim to advance our collective understanding of cardiovascular prevention and contribute to the global effort to reduce the burden of cardiovascular diseases.
