Message from the Guest Editor

We encourage authors to submit contributions in the following priority areas to this Special Issue of Land:

- Multi-disciplinary research that evaluates land use and land cover changes through a socio-ecological lens, to help understand and unpack ongoing trends, and identify elements acting as game changers in either facilitating or hindering transformative change.
- Multi-disciplinary research that evaluates how land use and land cover changes under future scenarios can be used in supporting policy decisions and guiding transformative changes.
- Multi-disciplinary research that investigates the taken up by either institutions or individuals of the increasingly available social and biophysical mapping tools for decision making and land management.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Land is the only open access journal covering all aspects of land science, and it is a pioneering platform for publishing on land system science. Our editorial board is comprised of eminent scholars. We publish high quality research on societally relevant, emerging and innovative topics and results in land system research. It is now one of the top land journals with a significant impact factor, and has a goal to become the best journal in land in the coming years. I strongly recommend Land for your best research publications for a fast dissemination of your research.
