Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

The aim of this Special Issue is to present original research papers in the field of sustainable agriculture, especially from an economic perspective. In this Special Issue, we seek original work that focuses on addressing the new challenges of sustainability, economically evaluating more sustainable agricultural techniques/systems and more environmentally friendly technological solutions for agriculture and livestock.

Studies that propose the economic analysis of policies linked to the promotion of agricultural sustainability and those that measure/compare sustainability from an economic perspective are also welcome.
