Message from the Guest Editors

The aim of this Special Issue is to collect research papers related to various sustainable development goals from a food supply chain perspective. We especially welcome review articles that describe the current state of the art in relation to food sustainability.

Potential topics include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Perspectives of ending poverty through sustainable food systems
- Role of sustainable diets in decreasing the number of the undernourished and in preventing malnutrition
- Sustainable food production and sustainable food consumption
- Trust in the food supply chain from a sustainable point of view
- Consumer perceptions related to sustainable food consumption
- Risks and benefits of using oceans, seas, and marine resources in food sustainability
- Food–water–energy nexus
- Climate change and food safety
- Combating climate change effects on food production
- Perspectives for decreasing the effects of climate change on sustainable food production
- Food and environmental law in promoting sustainable development goals
- Food waste and food loss and SDGs
