Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue intends to provide a more interactive and focused platform for researchers and practitioners to present and discuss new and emerging ideas. It is focused on researching and studying new challenges in transit service quality. More precisely, the Special Issue aims to investigate novel models, methods, systems, and tools to characterize, develop, measure, and monitor transit service quality. The Special Issue will contribute to discuss and compare suitable novel solutions based on intelligent techniques and possibly applied in real-world environments.

Deadline for manuscript
