Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

Professors Sarah De Saeger and J. David Miller are planning a Special Issue of Toxins for publication in April 2019 on the theme of mycotoxins, public health, and trade in developing regions. There has been recent attention to mycotoxin issues in the most challenged regions, that is, much of Africa and parts of East Asia and Latin America. Over the past four decades, there have also been success stories where mycotoxin contaminations have been reduced, even in risk areas such as in China, some ASEAN and Latin American countries. The hope is to illuminate situations all over the world reflecting both challenges and opportunities.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Toxinology is an incredibly diverse area of study, ranging from field surveys of environmental toxins to the study of toxin action at the molecular level. The editorial board and staff of Toxins are dedicated to providing a timely, peer-reviewed outlet for exciting, innovative primary research articles and concise, informative reviews from investigators in the myriad of disciplines contributing to our knowledge on toxins. We are committed to meeting the needs of the toxin research community by offering useful and timely reviews of all manuscripts submitted. Please consider Toxins when submitting your work for publication.
